ATLAS

1972

MASSACHUSETTS DEPARTMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH

The Atlas of the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health is re-issued periodically, and every effort is made to insure its accuracy. Therefore any corrections or additions should be reported to the Commissioner's Office, Department of Mental Health, 190 Portland Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02114.

ATLAS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS DEPARTMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH 1972

The Department of Mental Health Atlas of 1972 shows the enormous growth of services and programs made possible by the Commonwealth's generous support of mental health and retardation, especially since the reorganization act of 1966. Literally hundreds of new services are now offered to our citizens -- in outreach programs of hospitals and schools, in outpatient clinics, day centers, half-way houses, cooperative apartments, nursery schools, court clinics, drug rehabilitation centers, and the institutions of correction. An impressive shift to the community as the base of treatment has taken place, along with a precipitous phase-down of the population in the larger hospitals and schools.

The Atlas now includes an up-to-date directory of addresses and telephone numbers, and an emphasis on area programs which we hope will make it a valuable tool for referral of individuals in need.

What the Atlas cannot tell the reader is the story of dedication and inspired work of thousands of loyal employees who have lavished care and affection upon the mentally ill and retarded, and steadily advanced the quality of care everywhere in our system.

Milton Greenblatt M.D.
Commissioner

Community residences are group living facilities which provide care for citizens with disabilities. The Department of Mental Health regulates community residences, including group homes, halfway houses, and cooperative apartments, which offer care for the mentally ill and retarded. Of the thirty-six residences shown here, eighteen are receiving some type of financial support from the Department. In addition, another forty-four are actively being planned.

AREA PROGRAMS & SERVICES

COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Massachusetts is rich in medical schools, colleges and universities, many of which are located in close proximity to facilities of the Department of Mental Health, permitting many joint ventures and enterprises.

Currently, approximately 4,500 student volunteers from over 125 institutions of higher learning give service to various hospitals and community mental health centers and schools for the retarded. This continuing commitment of time on the part of these volunteers is invaluable to the staff and residents of our facilities.

Faculty members from the colleges and universities provide consultation and instruction or give direct service to DMH facilities on a part time basis. In turn, professionals of the department receive academic appointments in universities and colleges, offer courses, and supervise field workers in departmental facilities.

The collaboration between the Department of Mental Health and institutions of higher learning has been a successful example of mutual assistance of great benefit to the citizens of the Commonwealth.
